Ranked 2nd in National Institutes of Health (NIH) funding, Penn Nursing Science is leading the nation and the world in advancing the science of nursing to improve outcomes. The University of Pennsylvania is the place where leaders in nursing science want to learn, teach, and conduct research to change healthcare throughout the world.

The research we perform defines the course of healthcare practice around the globe, and the students we educate gain the experience and exposure only an Ivy League education can provide at the baccalaureate, masters, and doctoral level.
